World's First Free Job Board Multi Posting Tool

The product has recently, successfully completed extensive testing in live trials, with Networkers International PLC

Recruiters from all business sectors can now use the World's First free, web-based multi-posting tool 'Vacancy Poster', to send their vacancies to multiple candidate sourcing engines with a single click.

Joe Sweeney, a Senior Recruitment professional along with his technical partner Steven Bromwich researched the Job and Multi-post markets for over 18 months, the results of which led them to recruit and finance a team of talented software developers who subsequently created a leading edge software system called Vacancy Poster.

Joe Sweeney, Director of Vacancy Poster says "Having been in recruitment most of my working life I know the challenges faced by recruitment specialists and so I wanted to develop a product that will solve the currently expensive problem of efficiently posting vacancies – hence the name Vacancy Poster "

The aim was simple, to build a product that could stand shoulder to shoulder with the current market leaders, but be free to use! In order to sustain a viable business model several additional, optional features were added that would have a small monthly fee attached, however even with a subscription to these optional features, job posters could still realise savings of up to 84% compared with leading alternatives.

Networkers International PLC said " we were so impressed with the product that not only we do we now use Vacancy Poster exclusively as our only job posting tool, we have also upgraded to the full premium version"

GradWeb2.0 now offers a further extension to its functionality

The recently launched online recruitment system, GradWeb2.0, now offers a further extension to its functionality with the ability to integrate with Microsoft Outlook.

GradWeb2.0 is the recruitment system that enables all aspects of the entire recruitment life-cycle, from attraction to onboarding, to be managed in one single system - for any form of volume recruitment.

Through the GradWeb2.0 event management module, users can manage all their recruitment events in one place and, with just one click, can see all the Outlook calendars they need to schedule their resources. The user can then check for any possible scheduling clashes, send invites and book appointments through Outlook without having to alternate between two systems.
